Welcome

This site supports the development of coding standards for commonly used programming languages such as C, C++, Java, and Perl, and the Android™ platform. These standards are developed through a broad-based community effort by members of the software development and software security communities.

For more information about this project and to see tips on how to contribute, please see the Development Guidelines.

Downloads

|-----------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------|

Standards Development Area

The following development areas enable you to learn about and contribute to secure coding standards for commonly used programming languages C, C++, Java, and Perl. Contact us to comment on existing items, submit recommendations, or request privileges to directly edit content on this site.

News

- December 2017: The Fall 2017 Edition of the Secure Coding newsletter was published on 20 December 2017.
- November 2017: Lori Flynn and Will Klieber authored a blog post on Automated Detection of Information Leaks in Mobile Devices.
- April 2017: David Svoboda writes in the SEI Blog about the CERT C++ Secure Coding Guidelines.
- March 2017: The SEI CERT C++ Coding Standard (2016 Edition) is released.
- September 2016: Aaron Ballman writes in the SEI Blog about newly developed rules for Secure Coding in C++11 and C++14.
- August 2016: The Secure Coding Certificate program becomes available.
- June 2016: The SEI CERT C Coding Standard (2016 Edition) is released.

Secure Coding Newsletter

The Secure Coding eNewsletter provides timely information about CERT secure coding standards.

The Fall 2017 Edition of the newsletter was published on 20 December 2017.
The Android robot is reproduced or modified from work created and shared by Google and used according to terms described in the Creative Commons 3.0 Attribution License.

Android is a trademark of Google Inc.